ABOUT THE AUTHOR

I never planned to become an author until the opportunity arose with my son. My son's fascination with time travel also sparked an interest for me. Mainly because I find history fascinating and the idea of travelling back to the past quite exciting.

Although I hold a bachelor's degree in Psychological Science, I have always found the topic of science challenging but interesting. My passion for research and the continual need to keep learning soon helped me overcome any obstacles I faced, and there were a few.

I hope you enjoy travelling back in time to Greenbank in 1893 as much as our family did.

Happy reading.

KEY SELLING POINTS

- Jake Jones attends Greenbank state school but needs to get back to the year 1893 when the school first began. The only way he can go back in time is by using Grandpa's peculiar time machine. It's a fun story about time travel but also touches on the struggles of grief that a little boy faces over the loss of his dearest Grandpa.
- My book offers a fun story, but what's even more exciting is that the book is educational and provides real historical information about the Greenbank area and its pioneers. The book has something for everyone.
- My son and I started writing this book together in 2018, and we thought other families might enjoy it as well. We decided to share it with the community in the hope of encouraging more connectedness, learning, and reading within families.
